The Characteristics of Effective Directors: Self-reflection

Board directorship is just one of a variety of ways Daily Groceries Co-op owners can contribute and participate in the co-op's direction. While directors are not expected to have specific prior training or experience in running a business or managing a grocery store, there are some characteristics that effective directors have in common.

As you consider whether or not to run for the Board of Directors, it can be helpful to reflect on how your interests, experiences, and motivations align with the characteristics of effective directors. You will not be asked to write about or share your responses to this section – these questions are only designed to give you an additional set of tools for determining if serving on the Board would be a good fit for you.

- Are you a passionate and enthusiastic owner-shopper at Daily Groceries?
- Are you interested in learning about and supporting the cooperative values and principles?
- Do you enjoy thinking about big-picture planning and system development?
- Are you excited about showing up, preparing for meetings, and protecting the board's process? (The duty of care)
- Are you good at working in a team environment?
- Are you willing to “inspect what you expect” through the delegation of decision-making to others and are you prepared to hold them accountable for results?
- Are you prepared to honor board holism even when you have personal disagreements or reservations which you've voiced?
- Are you ready to disclose all conflicts, not compete with the co-op, and not breach confidentiality? (The duty of loyalty)
- Are you willing to take on a “servant-leader” role and serve Daily Groceries Co-op through participation and active engagement?

Responsibilities of the Daily Groceries Co-op Board of Directors:

1. Create and sustain a meaningful relationship with owners.
2. Hire, compensate, delegate responsibility to, and hold accountable a general manager.
3. Have expectations in the form of written governing policies that realistically address the broadest levels of all organizational decisions and situations.
4. Assign responsibility in a way that honors our commitment to empowerment and clear distinction of roles.
5. Regularly self-assess operational board performance by monitoring our written governing policies.
6. Perpetuate the board's leadership capacity using ongoing education, training, and recruitment.
7. Ensure that the cooperative remains financially secure and that owners receive a reasonable value on their equity in accordance with the cooperative principles of economic member participation.

The board is not involved in the daily operations of the store.

Seven owners serve on the Board of Directors of Daily Groceries Co-op. Three seats are up for election. Board members have a duty to represent the owners at large and not a particular constituency, and to act in the owners' best interests. The Daily Groceries Co-op's Board of Directors is not compensated in accordance with Board policies.

A strong and successful cooperative depends on a highly functional and effective Board of Directors. This application as well as an informal interview will help the Board's Nominating Committee recommend a slate to the Board for approval. Candidates who the Board determines to have the ability to work well under the Policy Governance model and in a consensus environment will receive a "Board's Endorsement" designation when they are presented to the owners during the election period. Candidates without this designation may also run.

What is a Co-operative?

A co-operative is an autonomous association of persons united voluntarily to meet their common economic, social, and cultural needs and aspirations through a jointly owned and democratically-controlled enterprise.

Cooperative Principles:

1. Voluntary and Open Membership

Co-operatives are voluntary organizations, open to all persons able to use their services and willing to accept the responsibilities of membership, without gender, social, racial, political, or religious discrimination.

2. Democratic Member Control

Co-operatives are democratic organizations controlled by their members, who actively participate in setting their policies and making decisions. People serving as elected representatives are accountable to the membership. In primary co-operatives, members have equal voting rights (one member, one vote) and co-operatives at other levels are organized in a democratic manner.

3. Member Economic Participation

Members contribute equitably to, and democratically control, the capital of their co-operative. At least part of that capital is usually the common property of the co-operative. They usually receive limited compensation, if any, on capital subscribed as a condition of membership. Members allocate surpluses for any or all of the following purposes: developing the co-operative, possibly by setting up reserves, part of which at least would be indivisible; benefiting members in proportion to their transactions with the co-operative; and supporting other activities approved by the membership.

4. Autonomy and Independence

Co-operatives are autonomous, self-help organizations controlled by their members. If they enter into agreements with other organizations, including governments, or raise capital from external sources, they do so on terms that ensure democratic control by their members and maintain their co-operative autonomy.

5. Education, Training, and Information

Co-operatives provide education and training for their members, elected representatives, managers, and employees so they can contribute effectively to the development of their co-operatives. They inform the general public - particularly young people and opinion leaders - about the nature and benefits of co-operation.

6. Co-operation Among Co-operatives

Co-operatives serve their members most effectively and strengthen the co-operative movement by working together through local, national, regional, and international structures.

7. Concern for Community

While focusing on member needs, co-operatives work for the sustainable development of their communities through policies accepted by their members.
